Former Princeton University Student Admitted into Pretrial Intervention Program

TRENTON – A former Princeton University student charged with using a cellphone camera to take video of a female student showering was admitted last week into a pretrial intervention program that requires a 36-month period of supervision.

On February 3, David Chesley, age 19, of Mesa, Arizona, entered a plea of not guilty to an accusation charging him with third-degree invasion of privacy. He voluntarily surrendered himself and was charged on September 29, 2014.

Other conditions of Chesley's pretrial intervention program require him to have no contact with the victim, to undergo a psychological evaluation pertaining to the charges and follow up with any recommended treatment, and to obtain and maintain full-time employment or enroll in school.
